CAMERON SOJOURNERS IN CAVERN RIVER OF MAMMOTH CAVE SING "EYES OF TEXAS ARE UPON YOU"

Not the Wabash or the Patomoc but a subterranian stream in the caverns of Mammoth Cave in Kentucky, four hardy sojourners from Cameron sang 'The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You' and drew hearty applause from fellow explorers. Thus was the melody of Texas' own song first introduced to this great colliseum in the earth.

The singers are Rev. J. P. Love, pastor of All Saints Episcopal church; Alvin Dusek of the Dusek Pharmacy and Chas. H. Pollard and son, Hardin Pollard, just returned from a three weeks tour of several states.

The party left Cameron three weeks ago for an auto and vacation trip to the pleasure spots in Kentucky and adjoining States. The train out of Cameron led through Texas to Oklahoma and from there through Kansas and Missouri. A pleasant stop was made in Forrest Park, St. Louis. At Louisville, Kentucky, they fished in the streams and at Mammoth Cave they fished in Green River, the deepest stream in the world. A trip was made into Indiana. On the way back they came through Tennessee, Mississippi, and Northern Louisiana, visiting the famous oil field at Kilgore.

The party members came back feeling much better for the delightful trip and while they saw many of the wonder places of those states visited, they still say that Texas and Cameron look mighty good to them and they are glad to be back among their friends.

APPROACHING MARRIAGE OF SISTER ANNOUNCED BY MISS MARY EASLEY

One of the most beautiful of summer hospitalities, was the courtesy extended a coterie of friends, by Miss Mary Easley at hre home Monday afternoon.

The reception suite was attractive in an array of summer blossoms, with the pink radiance rose predominating in the floral embellishments and em phasizing the dainty color scheme chosen by this hostess.

The bridge tables were appointed in colorful covers, scores and tallies and four tables of players were noted at the games. A bevy of out-of-town visitors added to the personnell of this lovely party, these were Mesdames Tom Scott of Brownwood, Paul Grogan of Austin, Glidewell Brook of Houston, Albert Collins and Misses Eloise Rogers and La Verne Bomar of Cameron. Others playing and calling after the games were Mesdames J. A. Tarver, Millard Ligon, J. R. Glass, Raymond Brod, Gillis Graham and Vernon Nicholson, Misses Stocklas, Carol Easley, Stallworth, Warrock, Barry, Buggin, Tarver and Henslee. The hostess presented gift shop novelties to those scoring in the games. For high score, Miss Vera Warrock was presented a 'make-up' box. In the cut for consolation Miss La Velle Tarver received a hose box, and in the cut for guest prize Mrs. Collins of Camron received maderia napkins. The hostess presented the honor guest, Miss Carol Easley, a pair of blue satin pajamas.

Bamboo luncheon trays centered with heart wreaths fashioned of pink stock, revealed the secret of the season. On miniature wedding bells, concealed within the wreaths, the approaching marriage of one of the city's charming girls was announced in this inscription 'Carrol-Buddo,' June 30. The 'time' the 'place' and the 'girl' caused a deal of merriment and felicitations and was a happy climax to this beautiful courtesy extended by this charming hostess.

Many pre-nuptial affairs are being planned for this bride-elect, prior to her marriage in the Methodist church on the evening of the thirtieth.—Rosebud News.

SHOWER FOR BRIDE-TO-BE

June brides and plans for their weddings continue to hold interest. The social calendar was enlivened on Tuesday evening with a delightful lawn party given by Mesdames Bob Brown and Bert Miller at the home of the latter when Miss Margaret McDermott, a bride-to-be, was named as honor guest.

A pretty floral setting was created with pink crepe myrtle and Shasta daisies in tall pedestal and floor baskets that adorned the lawn where pink Japanese lanterns shed rosy light over a pretty scene where five tables were placed for bridge players; and for forty-two. Pink covers adorned the tables. The same tonal effect was seen in the score cards and tallie pads.

A beautiful novelty pitcher was given for high score in bridge and was won by Mrs. Dero Jenkins of Rockdale; while high for forty-two was captured by Mrs. Ira Lee Foster, a bridal bouquet of white oleander tied with pink tulle, both of which were presented to the honor guest.

Little Billie Black, dressed in a red and white suit with red hearts, and Barbara Ann, dainty little daughter of one of the hostesses, dressed as a cupid, presented a tiny floral corsage to the honor guest, who followed the streamers attached that led her to a tray of lovely gifts consisting of kitchen necessities. The happy recipient, in a beautiful manner, expressed her appreciation for the remembrance.

Games followed the shower and later the hostesses, assisted by Miss Verna Beth Beard and Mrs. Carl Black, served pink and white brick ice cream and individual angel food cakes embossed with pink rose buds, on decorated trays centered with vases filled with pink flowers.

Only close friends of the bride were invited to attend this delightful affair.

LAWN PARTY

Miss Mary Francis Young was a delightful hostess to a pretty lawn party at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. Z. Young, East 23rd Street Friday evening at eight o'clock.

Floral decorations made attractive the East lawn and reception rooms and Japanese lanterns gave light for many interesting games on the lawn. Six tables were placed amid this attractive environment and after a round of merry games high score was made by Foldine Rylander for the girls, who received a pretty pillow, low fell to Arnette Ryan, and was given a bottle of perfume. Highest score for the boys was made by Billie Newton and low fell to Glenn Kahler, both receiving a shaving set.

The hostess served ice cream and angel food cake at the conclusion of the games. Glenn Kahler of Buckholts, who has been attending medical school at Galveston, was an out of town guest.

MRS. JOHN MUSE ENTERTAINS

Another charming hospitality of last week was Mrs. John Muse's bridge party Friday evening at her home 810 North Central Avenue, honoring Miss Margaret McDermott, a bride-elect of this month.

Tallies, score pads and additional bridge appointments showed pink and green tints in predominance, with pink zennias and ferns that graced the rooms where game tables were placed.

Mrs. Conn Moody captured high trophy and consolation fell to Mrs. Robert Brown, both receiving attractive gift shop novelties, which they presented to the honoree.

The honor guest was surprised with a miscelleanous shower which consisted of linens, china, pictures, vases and other attractive household articles.

NOTICE TO CAR DRIVERS!

This will give notice that no more excuses are to be accepted for failure to observe the stop sings in Cameron.

When these stop signs were installed it was the policy of the traffic officers to permit people to become familiar with driving conditions in the stop sign area.

Enforcement of the traffic regulations is necessary and from this notice car drivers will be informed that all violations will be reported and fines imposed.

Co-operation is asked for because the city does not desire to impose fines but this will be necessary if the traffic regluations are not observed. The stop signs are installed and maintained for the safety of the citizens and the orderly dispatch of traffic and violations cannot be permitted further.

Cutting corners will be prohibited also. There has been frequent violations of these regulations and complaint has been made so that it becomes necessary to enforce the regulations.

Your co-operation is sought. Let's make Cameron safe for auto traffic.

Respectfully,

Dan Lunsford
Traffic Officer.

A BOY SCOUT ON THE JOB

The following story is told by Richard S. Bonds, which illustrates well the practical side of the work of the Boy Scout Movement. Because we believe many are unacquainted with this important phase of Boy Scout work in the community, we publish the story.

The accident was a serious one. Two upturned cars and half a dozen injured persons by the roadside indicated this at the first glance.

Motorists from both directions stopped and did their best to render first aid and get the most seriously injured started for the nearest hospital—which was far away.

That enemy to motorists, shattered glass, had rendered its usual havoc, particularly with one of the drivers from whose arm a spirting flow announced extreme danger.

None seemed to know xactly what to do until a mere youth picked his way through the crowd, wrapped his handkerchief around the patient's arm, slipped a jack knife beneath it, and then with a screw driver, which he picked up from the ground, gave the tournquet a few expert twists.

It did the trick.

'Loosen this for a few seconds every ten minutes,' he said, 'and then tighten it up again. You will have trouble i f you don't.

The man was rushed to the hospital, and the boy started back along the line of automobiles. Someone who had watched the boy stopped him and asked him where he had learned to stop arterial bleeding.

'It's one of the first things a Boy Scout has to learn,' he said with a smile, 'but I guess I will just call it my good turn for today. You know we pledge ourselves to do at least one good turn daily and I was just telling Dad that I was behind time for today.'

And that's all the boy had to say about saving a life. He probably did not even realize that he had taught a score of adults the real meaning of being prepared.

A BAD SITUATION

We are told that many of the large city banks are filled with money which they can not loan for the reason that the people who need and could use the money, do not have the type of scurities necessary to secure the money. On the other hand small town banks that are the farmers' banks are going broke or are struggling al. ong with insufficient funds to carry on. We note that large banks in the east are loaning call money at one per cent and one-half per cent.

While this is going on the farmer is suffering for want of capital on which to operate and farm mortgages are being foreclosed and livestock and grain dumped on an already glutted market.

The situation is not healthy for the agricultural industry and the agricultural industry is the mainstay of this nation. When agriculture suffers, the entire nation suffers.

DRIFT TOWARD THE COUNTRY

The present depression with its attendant hardship on the small business man as well as the man on a salary is going to bring about some changes in the mode of living of many people. Chief among these is a drift back to the land. This drift will not be in the nature of a back to the farm movement which receives attention of writers and economics from time to time. The tendency is already in evidence for men in business and on a salary to own small tracts of land along the highways and produce a share of the living on the land. It is possible nowadays to secure desirable small tracts within easy driving distance of one's work. On these a good garden can be produced, chickens and a cow kept and in this way much of the family living produced on the place. The exercise afforded in connection with the upkeep of a project of this kind, proves beneficial in most instances to the owner. Many are coming to realize that the city life that permits one to shuttle back and forth between the office and the tiny apartment has not much future or freedom to it, hence the turning toward the country.

The situation is a wholesale one. Life under these conditions is more healthful and desirable than in the crowded city.

On these tracts it is possible to have practically all of the modern conveniences that the home in the city affords. The ready access to the entertainmnt and social life of the city removes from such a rural home the feature of isolation that marked rural life a few years ago.

With such a resource under his feet the average worker does not need to live in constant fear that when the pay check stops the landlord will be appearing with an ejection notice in a few days for non payment of rent.

Titanic Memorial Unveiled by the President

The memorial in Washington to those who lost their lives in the sinking of the Titanic was unveiled on May 26 by President Hoover. The statue, shown above draped for protection, is a figure with outstretched arms, and is on the new Riverside drive along the Potomac river north of the Arlington Memorial bridge.

We all pass the buck, it is a human nature trait. When you throw one that misses the plate an inch or two, you turn to the crowd in the stands with a slight wink—and maybe cover both eyes, to indicate that the ump is as blind as a bat. The crowd yells with apparent delight at these antics. but the crowd is wise to your style of pitching. Every individual in the stands and bleachers knows in his heart that your throw went wild—knows you are passing out a bunch of horse feathers to submerge a bum toss. They laugh wit h you, but they have your number and the next one had better be over the pan or they will erve you a dish of fan picked raspberries in a most enthusiastic manner.

If there is any consolation in it to you, the other fellow is having the same difficulty to get by that you are. He is having the same strenuous fight to keep the rent paid, meet his notes, buy a new car, put the children through school, pay his life insurance premiums and meet all the thousand and one demands that come to him the same as yours come to you. He may, as they say put on a better front and seem to be getting by easier, but in the majority of instances it is merely because he is a better actor and is able to conceal his effort.

Most fortunes and in fact nearly all of the comfortable incomes of those in any community who have provided enough for old age have been built a nickel and dime at a time. People as a rule do not keep themselves poor through occasional large expenditures, that like the drip at the spigot, drain but rather through expensive habits, their surplus away from them gradually. The person who has learned to refrain from buying things he does not need merely because they are cheap or happen to strike a passing fancy has laid the foundation stone of success and thrift.

Someone has truly said that the best way to judge a man is not by what other men say of him, but by what he says of other men. How true. A few minutes conversation with a man about other men will give a more accurate line up on him than an hour's inquiry about him from other men. One will find out if he is generous or selfish, honest or unscrupulous, narrow minded or broad minded, mean or charitable. In fact one can find out all he needs to know about a man by listening him talk about other men.

In the animal kingdom when a couple of wolves engage in a fight, the pack stands around waiting to see which one will fall. As soon as death occurs to one of the combatants the circle closes in and tears him to pieces. The business world is a lot like that. As long as a man is riding on the top of the wave, everyone is after his business and is willing to trust him, but let misfortune overtake him and he lose his money and the crowd closes in on him.

Ed Howe the veteran Kansas newspaper man has looked out upon life through the eyes of a newspaper reporter for more than forty years. The following observation by him is of interest for the reason that it is the opinion of a trained observer of life. Mr. Howe says: The young should be taught the danger of getting a start in idleness. If a young man is idle up to the age of twenty, his case is usually hopeless. Industry should be taught the young like manners, arithmetic, grammar, history, music.

This country is the richest nation in the world. The difficulty is that the bulk of the wealth of the country is in the hands of a few people. When the bulk of the money gets into the hands of a few, business is poor because the wants of these few are limited. When the bulk of the money gets into the hands of the many, business is good beause their wants are many.

I haven't got to make the universe; I've got to do my own small job and to look up often at the trees and hills and the sky and be friendly with all men.—David Grayson.

We should manage our thoughts as shepherds do their flowers in making garlands; first select the choicest and dispose of them in the most proper places, that everyone may reflect a part of its brightness on the next.—S. T. Coleridge.

Silence is the best resolve for him who distrusts himself.—LaRochefoucauld.

An honest man is one of the few great works that can be seen for nothing.—Dickens.

While it is commonly called a 'whisk' broom, 'whisp' is also correct.

Soon after the breeding season each year, the male deer loses its entire rack of antlers.

Air travel is safer than generally supposed. Last year in this country there was only one fatal accident for each 2,800,000 miles flown.

Slavery is still in existence, in Liberia. Harvey Firestone, tire manufacturer, who operates a rubber plantation in Liberia has asked the government to abolish slavery that he may go into the open market and employ labor without having to buy slaves from the officials.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Giles Avriett and two sons, Giles and Jack, entertained jointly with an early twilight lawn party on Saturday, June 20, celebrating the fourth birthday of little Don Marie Avriett.

This was a very happy occasion, was given on the East lawn of the Avriett home, 703 North Central Avenue, with some twenty-five relatives present.

Lawn games were enjoyed by the younger set and little Don Marie enjoyed them as only childhood can, and received many beautiful gifts.

Later in the evening sandwiches, soda pop, ice cream and cake were served on the lawn. A beautiful white birthday cake, which was baked by one of her aunts, Mrs. William Rogers, bearing the name of the little honor guest, topped with four burning candles, was cut and enjoyed.

May little Don Marie enjoy many more of these delightful occasions.

Great Writers of Past Had Fondness for Cats

Byron was fond of cats; in his establishment at Ravenna he had five of them, writes Helen M. Winslow in "Concerning Cats." Daniel Maclise's famous portrait of Harriot Martineau represents that estimable woman sitting in front of a fireplace and turning her face to receive the caress of her pet cat crawling to a resting place upon her mistress' shoulder.

Baudelaire, it is said, never could pass a cat in the street without stopping to stroke and fondle it. "Many a time," said Champfleury, "when he and I have been walking together, have we stopped to look at a cat curled up luxuriously in a pile of fresh white linen, reveling in the cleanliness of the newly ironed fabrics."

Professor Huxley's notorious fondness for cats was a fad which he shared with Paul de Koch, the novelist, who, at one time, kept as many as 30 cats in the house. Many descriptions of them are to be found scattered through his novels. His chief favorite, Fromentin, lived 11 years with him.

Pierre Loti has written a charming and most touching history of two of his cats—Moumette Blanche and Moumette Chinoise—which all true cat lovers should make a point of reading.

Science Offers Weapon for Survival of Man

Science will help man to survive beyond the fate of many extinct species that have been conquered by their environment. The most powerful method yet devised, says Dr. Roscoe R. Spencer writing in Hygeia Magazine, is in the weapon of science.

Man is confronted with the problem of adapting himself successfully to his environment before the environment overpowers him, says Doctor Spencer. Research alone will enable man to discover the laws of nature so that he may adapt himself, and in science lies the heart and soul of research.

While the average person has only the vaguest ideas concerning the workings of scientific men, science is not at all to be left to the highly gifted few, Doctor Spencer continues. The average person is capable of accomplishing much by the scientific method of trial and error in research. Doctor Spencer invites his readers to bring the scientific methods into their everyday life and to benefit by its use.

Cold Cream Long Popular

Don't let this jar your cold cream, girls. But, "believe it or not," that indispensable cosmetic of present-day femininity has been keeping the wrinkles from milady's face for more than 2,000 years. So says Charles Whitebread, curator of the division of medicine at the National museum in Washington. What is more, he says it is the second oldest of all pharmaceutical preparations. And do you girls know who "invented" your old standby? To quote Curator Whitebread "the fragrant unguent has changed very little from the original formula for unguentum refrigerans ceratum, invented and prescribed by the Roman physician Galen, sometimes known as the 'father of pharmacy.'"—Pathfinder Magazine.

"Pieces of Eight"

This coin is a Spanish piece that circulated freely in this country in Colonial and Revolutionary times and the coin to which we owe the adoption of the dollar as the unit of our currency. It had become the custom in many places, especially in the South, to price goods, keep accounts and make collections in "Spanish milled dollars," the name under which the old "pieces of eight"—eight reals—were known in the Colonies. When we came to have a currency of our own we took the piece of eight, or Spanish dollar, as our unit and divided it into a hundred cents.

The End Alone Counts

John Bright once declared of his party, "We shall win in the long run." And they did. It is the win in the long run that is life's best win.

The runner, who wins the first lap is a good runner, but he who stays on and keeps at his running and wins the last is the best runner. The boxer who wins the fight is he who wins in the long run.

A chapter in a life may be tragic, but if the end is happy, what does it matter? It is the end that counts.—London Chronicle.

Cure for Convulsions

The following was taken from a recent report by a nurse in one of the cities of New York state:

"While taking a history of a prenatal mother I asked the mother what was the cause of a previous child's death; she replied that it died of convulsions. I then inquired if she knew what to do for convulsions. She answered immediately, saying 'stand with the baby in your left arm with back to the stove, remove baby's shirt and throw it over your shoulder into the fire.'"—Health News.

Too Big to Ask

Robert insisted that his younger brother be sent on an errand to a neighbor's.

"Why don't you want to go?" inquired his mother.

"I went to the grocery for her. She said she was going to make cookies today and Junior will get 'em, if he goes. I'm too big to ask."

Remove that Monkey Wrench

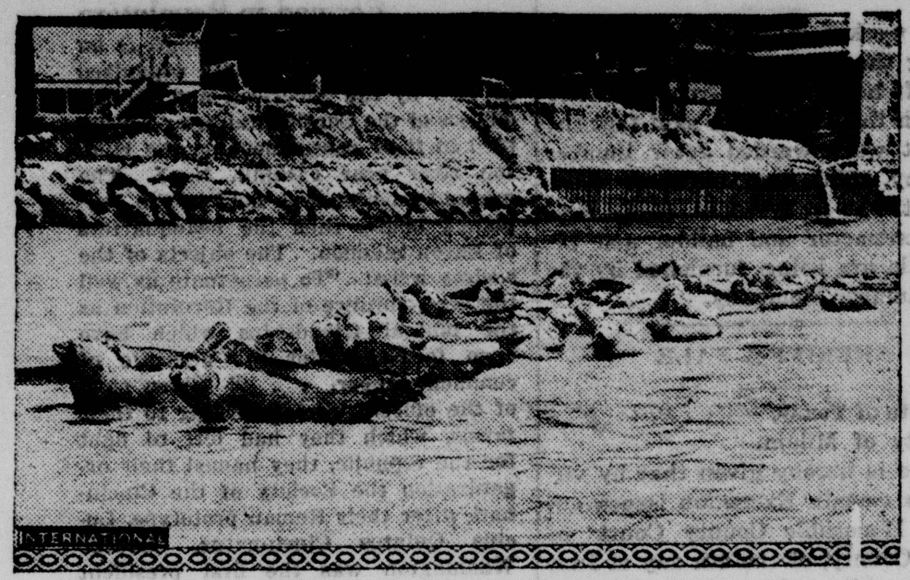
The depression bugbear is just a monkey wrench in the economic machinery. Until we remove it by buying normally and thinking normally, unemployment, closed factories and red-inked ledgers are the inevitable result. Thus, in holding back our dollars we emphasize the very situation we dread so greatly. : : Pride in the community, common sense, patriotism, all urge us to buy normally. : : : It's not a form of martyrdom : : : just a simple appeal to come out of the cyclone cellar, now that the storm is over.

This Is Buying Time!

Many Seals on the California Coast



The largest number of channel seals and sea lions to be seen in many years have appeared in the surf from Long Beach to Santa Monica, Calif. Fishermen said the reason for the heavy influx of seals was the early and exceptionally heavy migration of game fish from Mexican waters northward. The game fish drive the smaller fry, particularly anchovies and sardines, in toward the shore line, and the seals, who live upon the smaller fish, follow them to shallow water. The photograph shows a number of seals basking in the noon-day sun after a heavy meal.

SUNNY SIDE

The Hollywood Girl team will be seen in action Sunday, June 27 and the largest crowd of the season is expected to witness the girls perform. It was understood when the game was matched that the team would be made up altogether of girls. Positively no passes issued for this game.

The other future games that have been booked so far will bring Rogers here on Friday, July 3 for a game and on the next day the same teams will go together again at the Lawless Green field. On the following day, Sunday, July 5 the Hilltop Bakery team of Waco will be here for a double header.

In the first game last Sunday with the Packers the Firemen played the game they should have been playing in very game. They got seventeen hits, one home run, one three bagger and three doubles being interspersed in the hit column. They batted for a .447 average, but in the second game fell to a .290 average. While Ricketts allowed nine hits in the second game he kept them well scattered. But in this second game Heinie Walker made two home runs. In the first game Sumrall got a home run, a three bagger and a single in four times up.

McDonald got but two hits in nine attempts. Vogelsang got three hits in eight tries. Thompson relieved Vogelsang in the sixth inning of the last game and got a hit in his one attempt. Jennees and Keith improved their standing in the hitting averages.

The Batting and Fielding averages will be found in another column of The Herald this week.

In view of the fact that Monroe, Louisiana seems to have blown up as a member of the Cotton States League the Firemen are trying to get Harry White for the Firemen team. He was telegraphed to but no reply was received asking him when he would return to his home. Possibly Ft. Worth has sent him to some other league for further seasoning and again he might have been told to report to Fort Worth.

This, (Tuesday) night the Temple Telegram League managers will have a meeting at Temple to make up the schedule for the second half of the Telegram race and attend to such other matters as may come before them.

Self-Revelation

Perhaps the most withering and wittiest rejoinder ever made on a political platform, thinks Sir Ian Malcolm, writing in his reminiscences, "Trodden Ways," was that made by Joseph H. Choate during an election campaign in New York. Following a speech by "Boss" Croker—who rarely spoke in public—in which he had "completely given away his case," in the judgment of his opponents, Mr. Choate gravely said:

"Now, consider the case of Balaam's ass; before it spoke all men regarded it as quite an ordinary quadruped; but after it had spoken they discovered what an extraordinary ass it was."—Kansas City Star..

British Flag a Mixture

The Union Jack of Great Britain is composed of three crosses, representing England, Scotland and Ireland. The cross of St. George for England is a broad, upright Latin cross, red on a white ground; the cross of St. Andrew for Scotland is a saltire or X-shaped, white on a blue ground; the cross of St. Patrick for Ireland is a red saltire on a white ground. When the union of the two crowns of England and Scotland took place upon the occasion of James VI of Scotland to the English throne as James I, the flags of England and Scotland were united. The union flag as it is now flown did not appear until 1801.

BUSINESS WOMEN GET REPORT ON STATE MEET

DELEGATES RETURN FROM ANNUAL STATE MEETING IN AMARILLO

Interesting accounts of the trip to Amarillo and the proceedings of the state meetng of the Business and Professional Women's Club were given by the delegates, Mrs. Katherine Robbins and Miss Rose Rischar, president, who attended the meeting the 28, 29 and 30 of May. They exhibited a number of attractive souvenirs along with the account at their meeting on Thursday night.

In the report from the state meeting it was found that the Cameron Club rated second in the state efficiency contest. Tyler came first with a very small margin.

Mrs. Robbins gave an interesting talk on the many resources of Milam county and Texas, and the club voted to use Texas products, and also voted to be boosters of Milam County and Texas, and to abstain from crying hard times and help mould the public to a better thinking of times. The club also voted to accept the invitation given them by the American Legion to help serve coffee on the 4th of July.

Mrs. H. C. Keith, treasurer, gave a splendid report on the condition of the club, voted to accept the report and turn it over to the new incoming treasurer, Miss Bernice McLerran.

The past year has been a very fine year for the club and much is due to the outgoing president, Miss Rischar, who has endeared herself to the club members and has helped very largely in the work of the club along the archaeological interest that has been taken.

The new officers were installed and the outgoing president, Miss Rischar, was presented with a handsome corsage. Mrs. L. Bigbee, the new president took charge of the meeting. This was followed with the serving of delicious ice cream and cake.

The strenuous life caused by the depression and competition almost causes one to wish for the old days when one wanted some beef he went out and shot a buffalo. No one hoarded food or money and there was plenty for all. The present plan of life with its competition develops the ingenuity and inventive genius of man, but who can say whether this is better and that there is more happiness than under the old system.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK HANEL MAKE LIVING ROOM; WRITE STORY OF HOW IMPROVEMENTS WERE MADE

Mrs. Adolph Hanel of the Hoyte Home Demonstration Club won first place in the County Living Room Contest and Mrs. Bill Clark won second place, according to the judges Mesdames Pollard and Dow Eplen of Cameron. Mrs. Hanel spent $35.45 and improved her living room by more than eleven times while Mrs. Bill Clark spent $5.96 and increased her score by four and one-half times. Both women are to be highly complimented on the splendid demonstration which they have conducted.

Mrs. Hanel's story of the improvement of her room follows:

'A few years ago, 1925, I joined the Home Demonstration Club. I thought that was a good idea for the farmer to have. I was interested in everything. Of course I heard about the Living Room Contest and how some women had made a new room out of an old one. I thought, 'How I wish I could have one.' While I was thinking this I wondered what is the use to have a pretty room far from the highway and can't hear a car nor a train, just an airplane once in a long while.

Last fall Miss Bartholomew asked the Club who would like to enter the Living Room Contest. I wanted too, so I asked some questions and later decided to join. In January the judges came out. After they left I said, 'That means for me to get busy.' What did I have to get busy with, two rocking chairs, that needed doing over, a home made library table, an old wash stand, and a wood heater, with a floor full of crocks and rough boards, a dark green ceiling, that made the room oppressive as well as dark, the walls were in such condition that the paper went back and forth when the norther blew and we had to pile on wood to keep warm. There were two small windows with the screen tacked on, no baseboards for the walls or facings for the windows.

In just a few days we had a demonstration on making rugs. I was thinking of all kinds of colors. I selected the green, tan and brown and another of black, blue and old rose. As I was working I wondered how long it was going to take to make one and the more I worked the better I liked it. I like the color. Thy are just made from gunny sacks.

Now I began on the ceiling, washing it and my husband gave it three coats of light cream paint. Another window was added making a double, which all the neighbors enjoy. From this window we see the fields and near-by woods—a beautiful view. The window and door facings had to be boxed in. The door was in a bad shape. This was the first carpetering my husband had ever done, so he had a hard time repairing. The floors were scraped and re-scraped and much putty used in filling the cracks but finally we decided it was ready for the light buff paint. The wood work which was a dark, dirty brown was all cleaned and painted a light cream.

I spent much time trying to find a piece of wall paper suitable for my walls, finally deciding on a very light piece with a tiny design, this would make my room look larger and give more light. The cracks had to be stuffed with gunny sacks, then I tacked sacks stretched tight over the walls, then cheese cloth over this. My husband renailed all the boards and fixed the walls so that it would not rain in any more. After putting up my paper I saw that I needed a base board. It would cost a couple of dollars to get the material, so we looked around and found some material that had come out of the wall. My husband said we could not use it because it was so rough. I told him I would fix it. I would smooth it. I did, too, now it looks like new. New frames were made for the screens and hung.

I was now ready to give my seven pieces of furniture a lye bath. From the wash stand my husband made a desk. One rocker was re-upholstered with striped denim and a foot stool made to match. All furniture was done in the walnut varnish and waxed. One book shelf was made and hung over the table, a couch was made from an old folding bed that had been thrown away for years. I had to make over the springs, make a mattress, and a cover. A piece of heavy material striped in the colors I have in my rugs was used for the spread. The couch gives us the needed seating space, and also answers for an extra bed when company comes. One table was made for the Victrola and a screen to hide the view from my kitchen door. Glazed chintz was used for the screen. I have used slub-osnaburg for my draperies hung on green poles. I like them very much. I had been wondering in the meantime what I was to do for a picture or two. After everything was all done but the arranging I remembered I had stored away a few. Among this I found a pastoral scene and another of flowers, with them two very attractive old wooden frames.

We have changed our furniture around several times in order to have each center in the most appropriate place. In our family we have two little girls, one five years and the other a baby. My little girl has her chair and her play things where she can enjoy them while I am sewing or resting. My husband likes his desk. We are very proud of a room to live in, our neighbors like it too. We have worked awfully hard smothing these boards, cleaning and refinishing, but we are glad it is finished, and we are going to enjoy it now.

My living room cost me $35.45, my largest expense being my paint.

DAMAGE SUITS HEARD IN DISTRICT COURT

RAY CATCHINGS CONVICTED OF LIQUOR CHARGE AND GIVEN ONE YEAR

Ray Catchings was convicted Monday and given a year in the penitentiary for unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale. The offense was alleged to have occurred within three blocks of the Rockdale post office, on or about April 19. Catchings gave notice of appeal when the Court refused his motion for new trial, and entered into a recognizance in the sum of $1500. His case will likely not be reached prior to November, as the Court of Criminal Appeals will adjourn the last of June for its summer vacation, and not re-convene before probably October.

Tuesday, the case of The Union Central Life Insurance Company vs. M. V. Tyson et al, debt and foreclosure of a deed of trust lien, was tried, and judgment rendered for plaintiff for amount sued for, about $7000, and foreclosure of lien and order of sale by the Sheriff. M. V. Tyson had sold the land, and it was owned by C. W. Tyson, but C. W. Tyson did not assume the debt, bought subject to it. There was a contest based upon the claim that the District Court did not have jurisdiction because administration is pending upon the C. W. Tyson estate in probate court, and if the District Court did render judgment, the judgment should be certified to the probate court. The trial court did not sustain these contentions.

The plea of privilege of defendant to be sued in Robertson county, his place of residence, was acted upon by the court, Wednesday, in the case of Rudolph Schultz vs. Walter C. Wiese. Schultz claims to have sustained damages by reason of collision between his car and a truck driven by an employee of Wiese, in Milam County, and alleges the truck driver was at fault and negligent. Plea was overruled and defendant gave notice of appeal to the Court of Civil Appeals.

Mrs. Serene Peters et al vs. S. Kestenbaum et al and D. D. Dove vs. S. Kestenbaum et al., suits for damages for alleged negligence of defendants' employee leaving a truck parked at night beside the public road near Chilton, without guard or lights, causing husband of Mrs. Peters, while en route from Waco to Lott to collide with the truck and fatally wounding him. Dove is administrator of the Peters estate and sues for the loss sustained in the destruction of the car, and for medical and hospital bills, etc. The cases were transfered here from Falls County District Court.

"Indiscreet" Starring Gloria Swanson At The Milam Sunday

Gloria Swanson, who comes to the Milam Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday in her latest United Artists picture enitled 'Indiscreet,' embarked upon a screen career because of herself, rather than a definite urge to find an outlet for histrionic talent.

Believers in destiny will find an excellent subject in Miss Swanson, because the popular star had no ambitions at all to follow the stage, much less the screen; but she was literally shoved into stardom because others recognized in her everything that is demanded of a star personality.

Miss Swanson's father was an army transport officer and the star received her early education at widely separated points owing to her father being transferred from one army post to another. While stationed at Key West, Florida, he saw his daughter make her theatrical debut in a school playlet, and afterwards at San Juan, Porto Rico, she was given the lead role in another school affair. Finally she visited an aunt in Chicago and 'just for fun,' did extra work at the old Essanay studio. She left shortly for California where she intended training for the concert stage, when Mack Sennett spotted her, and insisted that she give up her musical career for the screen.

The rest is well known to screen fans. Miss Swanson will always be known as one of the greatest motion picture stars to grace the screen, and her latest work in 'Indiscreet' is an appealing characterization providing numerous dramatic situations, without being too heavy, and sufficient comedy relief without being trivial. She appears as 'Jerry Trent' who has very definite ideas about the proper way to dominate men, and does not hesitate to put them into practice.

Miss Swanson has an excellent supporting cast with Ben Lyon opposite her.

The star portrays a modern girl who, while engaged to a popular novelist, risks the destruction of her own happiness to prevent a former admirer from winning the affections of her younger sister.

Ben Lyon, generally regarded as one o fthe most debonair leading men i npictures, is cast in the leading male role as the novelist. 'Tony Blake,' a dashing, buoyant sort of fellow who puts zest into life principally by obeying his impulses.

Monroe Owsley, who gave such an excellent account of himself in H'oliday,' in the same role which he created on the Broadway stage, plays the former lover, 'Jim Woodward,' giving the character just the touch of suavity it requires.

Barbara Kent, one of the most promising of the younger featured players and a graduate of the school of Comedy, which has started so many up the ladder of cinematic prominence appears as the younger sister, 'Joan Trent.'

Arthur Lake, admittedly the screen's outstanding exponent of 'puppy love,' has the role of 'Buster Collins,' 'Joan's' sweetheart of school days—and it is the part much to his liking.

Picture goers who see Gloria Swanson's latest United Artists picture will be agreeably impressed with the forward stride recently made in sound recosding. A new device was used in seconding Miss Swanson's pictuse and fans will have a pleasant surprise when they hear the new tone reproduction which is said to be so close to life as to be startling.

Great Patriotic Society Formed in Revolution

The Society of the Cincinnati is an hereditary patriotic society organized in 1783 by the American and foreign officers of the Continental army assembled in their cantonment on the Hudson river near Fishkill, N. Y. The original meeting was held in the Verplanck house, then the headquarters of Baron Steuben. The objects of the society were: "To perpetuate as well the remembrance of the Revolution as the mutual friendships which have been formed under the pressure of common danger. . . ." Since most of the officers were returning to their farms, which they had left to fight for the republic, they named their organization the Society of the Cincinnati, after their Roman prototype, Lucius Quintus Cincinnatus. George Washington was the first president general. He was elected in 1787 and re-elected until his death. Presidents general succeeding him have been Alexander Hamilton, C. Coteswortlı Pinckney, Thomas Pinckney, Aaron Ogden, Morgan Lewis, William Popham, H. A. S. Dearborn, Hamilton Fish, William Wayne and Winslow Warren. The state societies meet annually and the general society meets once in every three years. The living hereditary members number 980. The emblem symbolizes the union of France and America.

Unlike Many Prophets, These Two Were Right

The centenary of the death of Henry Bell, that erratic genius responsible for the introduction of steam navigation on the Clyde, has passed. On the trial trip of the Comet, Bell is reported to have declared: "Wherever there is a river . . . throughout the world there will speedily be a steamboat." Similarly Robert Stephenson, who foresaw the development of that other means of transport—the railway—and whose name is ever associated with the Liverpool and Manchester railway, which was opened more than one hundred years ago, while sitting in a Stockton inn, told his son and John Dixon: "I venture to tell you I think you will live to see the day when railways will supersede almost all other methods of conveyance in this country. What I have said will come to pass, as sure as you live." Both of these prophets lived to see the fulfilment of their prophecies.

Legends of Empedocles

Empedocles lived in royal style, surrounded by all the pomp and pageantry great wealth could procure. He was exceedingly kind to the poor and gave large sums to succor them. He also provided dowries for scores of poor young virgins to enable them to secure husbands.

Empedocles studied medicine and became a really great physician for the time. He was brought to a woman who had lain for seven days as if dead. "She can, and will, remain in that state, without eating or breathing, for thirty days," declared Empedocles. He was right. She did. At the end of that time he restored her to full life and vigor.—Exchange.

Old Anglo-Saxon Word

Minster, meaning a Christian religious house, is from an Anglo-Saxon word, mynster, meaning the same thing. In the nomenclature of the English church, it means an abbey, or the monastic building of a religious society. In the term Westminster abbey, the word abbey is superfluous, for minster means the same thing, and is so used in York minster, meaning the abbey church at York. It is generally agreed that Westminster was so called because it was west of St. Paul's. The present abbey is the abbey of St. Peter, but is called Westminster because built on the site of the old Westminster.

Change With Weather

Some hygroscopes are not mechanical; they owe their hygroscopic properties to their color, which changes with the state of humidity of the air by reason of the application of sympathetic inks. These instruments are often composed of a flower or a figure, of light muslin or paper, immersed in the following solution: Cobalt chloride, 1 part; gelatin, 10 parts; water, 100 parts. The normal coloring is pink. This color changes into violet in medium humid weather and into blue in very dry weather.—Washington Star.

Chinese God of Destiny

The image of the famous Chinese God of Destiny before which the young are taught to pray is rather a terrifying object with its great glaring eyes, and open mouth full of sharpened teeth. He is regarded as a friend, however. The young are taught to kneel and pray for light for their future guidance. The abode of this idol is the famous 501 temple in Pekin, so-called because of that number of images housed therein and where the Chinese repair for worship.

Compromise

The mother of a four-year-old youngster had been obliged to resort to disciplinary measures to suppress the cavortings of her offspring. When bedtime arrived, the sensibilities of the child continued to show signs of injury.

"Kiss mother, honey," suggested the mother as she tucked the covers about her daughter.

"All right, mamma, I still love you. But I don't like you," firmly announced the little one.

Knights of Columbus Win 2 Games Here Sunday, June 21st

The Knights got out their battle axe, sharpened and used it to win a double header. Hoyte was the first victim. Schigut was the starting pitcher and after a good lead given him by his team mates was relieved by Schattle who did nicely however allowing three runs but held them in the pinches and the Knights won 5 to 3.

In the second game against Rockdale, Schigut pitched again and won 7 to 5. Louis Matula of Knights took the hidden ball trick polished it well and then used it on second base to retire the side. Balhorn was missed in the lineup on account of a sore hand and managed from the bench, but in the sixth inning of the second game had to go in and catch as Lud Matula was very painfully hurt in a collision on a close play at home plate.

Scott and Parker struck out four each.

In the second game Worcester started on the mound for the Firemen and yielded three runs and four hits in the two innings he pitched. Alford relieved Worcester at the beginning of the third and pitched the remainder of the game and was touched up for eleven runs on eight hits. In this game Heinie Walker got two home runs and batted in another run. In the first game the Firemen hit .447 and .290 in the second game. In the second game Rickets was touched for nine hits but he kept them well scattered. June Brides

1898 1931

CAN YOU lucky brides of 1931 imagine what your kitchen would have looked like if you had married in 1898, when most people didn't have the advantages of natural gas service? Let's try.

First, the unattractive bulk over against the wall is your wood stove. Since you have been married only two weeks, friend husband is home early to help. Having brought in an armload of wood, he is now industriously trying to start a fire while fanning the smoke away with his new derby. In about thirty minutes your stove should be hot enough to boil water, which is conveniently near in a big bucket with a handy dipper. Ice? Why my dear, ice was a luxury in those days.

But enough of inconveniences--back to 1931 with its myriad conveniences for housewives both old and young. Your glistening gas range gives you instant heat at the turn of a handle. Most of the evening meal has already been cooked in the automatically controlled oven. The oven's insulated walls have kept all the heat inside, leaving the kitchen cool and comfortable. Plenty of steaming hot water is constantly on tap. The automatic gas refrigerator has kept everything fresh and crisp and made plenty of ice without a single sound. The scraps from the evening meal are disposed of by your odorless, gas-fired incinerator.

Is it any wonder that the modern bride keeps young--pretty--sweet-tempered--happy--many years longer than the bride in the days before gas comforts?

15c The price of an ice cream soda will buy a day's supply of natural gas for cooking, heating and hot water supply. (The average gas bill amounts to about 15c a day throughout the year.)

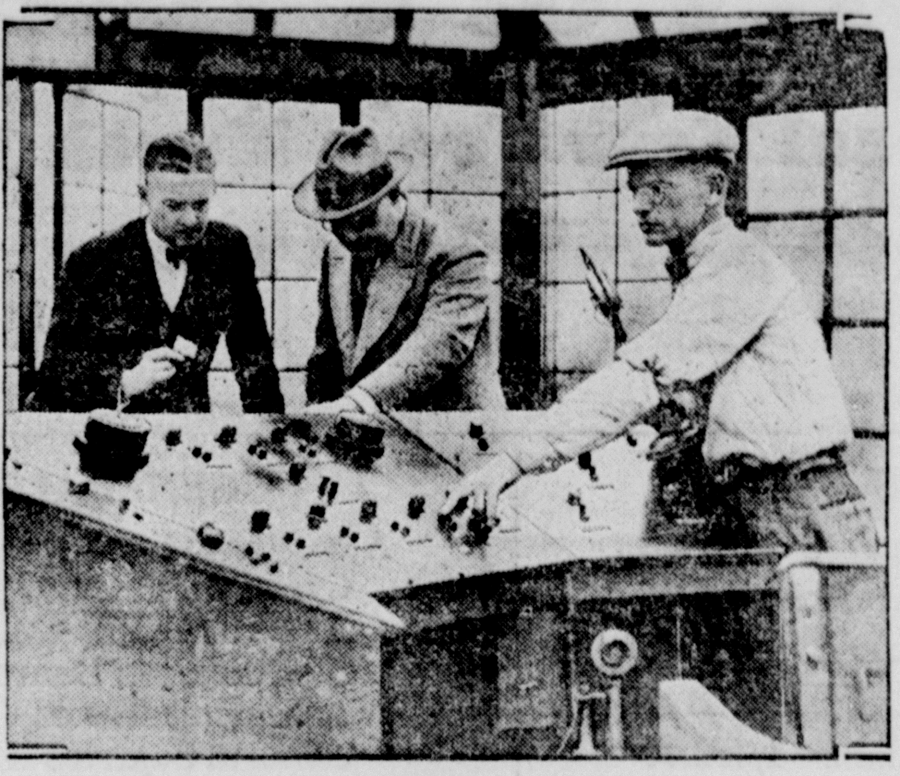
First Air Traffic Control Tower



The first air traffic control system, to regulate the taking off and landing of airplanes by means of a short-range voice radio transmitter to inform the pilots of ground conditions on the field, has been installed at the Cleveland (Ohio) municipal airport by Maj. John Berry, airport manager. In addition to regulating ships in flight by radio, the system includes a device by which the positions of all airline planes leaving or approaching Cleveland are marked on a map and may be seen at a glance. CAMERON SOJOURNERS IN CAVERN RIVER OF MAMMOTH CAVE SING "EYES OF TEXAS ARE UPON YOU"

Not the Wabash or the Patomoc but a subterranian stream in the caverns of Mammoth Cave in Kentucky, four hardy sojourners from Cameron sang 'The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You' and drew hearty applause from fellow explorers. Thus was the melody of Texas' own song first introduced to this great colliseum in the earth.

The singers are Rev. J. P. Love, pastor of All Saints Episcopal church; Alvin Dusek of the Dusek Pharmacy and Chas. H. Pollard and son, Hardin Pollard, just returned from a three weeks tour of several states.

The party left Cameron three weeks ago for an auto and vacation trip to the pleasure spots in Kenutucky and adjoining States. The train out of Cameron led through Texas to Oklahoma and from there through Kansas and Missouri. A pleasant stop was in Forrest Park, St. Louis. At Louisville, Kentucky, they fished in the streams and at Mammoth Cave they fished in Green River, the deepest stream in the world. A trip was made into Indiana. On the way back they came through Tennessee, Misissippi, and Northern Louisiana, visiting the famous oil field at Kilgore.

The party members came back feeling much better for the delightful trip and while they saw many of the wonder places of those states visited, they still say that Texas and Cameron look mighty good to them and they are glad to be back among their friends.

APPROACHING MARRIAGE OF SISTER ANNOUNCED BY MISS MARY EASLEY

One of the most beautiful of summer hospitalities, was the courtesy extended a coterie of friends, by Miss Mary Easley at hre home Monday afternoon.

The reception suite was attractive in an array of summer blossoms, with the pink radiance rose predominating in the floral embellishments and emphasizing the dainty color scheme chosen by this hostess.

The bridge tables were appointed in colorful covers, scores and tallies and four tables of players were noted at the games. A bevy of out-of-town visitors added to the personnel of this lovely party, these were Mesdames Tom Scott of Brownwood, Paul Grogan of Austin, Glidewell Brook of Houston, Albert Collins and Misses Eloise Rogers and La Verne Bomar of Cameron. Others playing and calling after the games were Mesdames J. A. Tarver, Millard Ligon, J. R. Glass, Raymond Brod, Gillis Graham and Vernon Nicholson, Misses Stocklas, Carol Easley, Stallworth, Warrock, Barry, Buggin, Tarver and Henslee. The hostess presented gift shop novelties to those scoring in the games. For high score, Miss Vera Warrock was presented a 'make-up' box. In the cut for consolation Miss La Velle Tarver received a hose box, and in the cut for guest prize Mrs. Collins of Camron received maderia napkins. The hostess presented the honor guest, Miss Carol Easley, a pair of blue satin pajamas.

Bamboo luncheon trays centered with heart wreaths fashioned of pink stock, revealed the secret of the season. On miniature wedding bells, concealed within the wreaths, the approaching marriage of one of the city's charming girls was announced in this inscription 'Carrol-Buddo,' June 30. The 'time' the 'place' and the 'girl' caused a deal of merriment and felicitations and was a happy climax to this beautiful courtesy extended by this charming hostess.

Many pre-nuptial affairs are being planned for this bride-elect, prior to her marriage in the Methodist church on the evening of the thirtieth.—Rosebud News.

SHOWER FOR BRIDE-TO-BE

June brides and plans for their weddings continue to hold interest. The social calendar was enlivened on Tuesday evening with a delightful lawn party given by Mesdames Bob Brown and Bert Miller at the home of the latter when Miss Margaret McDermott, a bride-to-be, was named as honor guest.

A pretty floral setting was created with pink crepe myrtle and Shasta daisies in tall pedestal and floor baskets that adorned the lawn where pink Japanese lanterns shed rosy light over a pretty scene where five tables were placed for bridge players; and for forty-two. Pink covers adorned the tables. The same tonal effect was seen in the score cards and tallie pads.

A beautiful novelty pitcher was given for high score in bridge and was won by Mrs. Dero Jenkins of Rockdale; while high for forty-two was captured by Mrs. Ira Lee Foster, a bridal bouquet of white oleander tied with pink tulle, both of which were presented to the honor guest.

Little Billie Black, dressed in a red and white suit with red hearts, and Barbara Ann, dainty little daughter of one of the hostesses, dressed as a cupid, presented a tiny floral corsage to the honor guest, who followed the streamers attached that led her to a tray of lovely gifts consisting of kitchen necessities. The happy recipient, in a beautiful manner, expressed her appreciation for the remmbrance.

Games followed the shower and later the hostesses, assisted by Miss Verna Beth Beard and Mrs. Carl Black, served pink and white brick ice cream and individual angel food cakes embossed with pink rose buds, on decorated trays centered with vases filled with pink flowers.

Only close friends of the bride were invited to attend this delightful affair.

HOMEMAKERS CLASS

The Homemakers Class of the Baptist Sunday school held their regular meeting in the annex Monday afternoon with twelve members present. Mrs. Don Slocomb, president. Mrs. John A. Smith led the devotional and Mrs. Wm. Henderson led in prayer.

A delightful luncheon was enjoyed at the conclusion of the session, with ice cream.

King Vivion, president of Southwestern University was the principal speaker and gave the Sunday morning services. Rev. C. A. Lehmberg closed the meeting Sunday night with services at eight o'clock. He was pastor there from 1906 to 1908.

C. Cole.

JOHNSON-MERRILL

Many friends will be interested in hearing of the marriage of Miss Louise Johnson to Roland Merrill of San Marcos, which took place Saturday morning, June 6 at the Presbyterian church in San Marcos, the Presbyterian pastor officiating.

Miss Louise is the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Johnson of Cameron; was born and reared here and after graduating from Yoe high school attended college at San Marcos for two years, where the romance began which culminated in the wedding.

The groom is a splendid young business man and after finishing his college work has been in the employ of the Gas Company at Seguin, where they are making their home.

The Herald extends its best wishes to the happy couple.

LAWN PARTY

Miss Mary Francis Young was a delightful hostess to a pretty lawn party at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. Z. Young, East 23rd Street Friday evening at eight o'clock.

Floral decorations made attractive the East lawn and reception rooms and Japanese lanterns gave light for many interesting games on the lawn. Six tables were placed amid this attractive environment and after a round of merry games high score was made by Foldine Rylander for the girls, who received a pretty pillow, low fell to Arnette Ryan, and was given a bottle of perfume. Highest score for the boys was made by Billie Newton and low fell to Glenn Kahler, both receiving a shaving set.

The hostess served ice cream and angel food cake at the conclusion of the games. Glenn Kahler of Buckholts, who has been attending medical school at Galveston, was an out of town guest.

MRS. JOHN MUSE ENTERTAINS

Another charming hospitality of last week was Mrs. John Muse's bridge party Friday evening at her home 810 North Central Avenue, honoring Miss Margaret McDermott, a bride-elect of this month.

Tallies, score pads and additional bridge appointments showed pink and green tints in predominance, with pink zennias and ferns that graced the rooms where game tables were placed.

Mrs. Conn Moody captured high trophy and consolation fell to Mrs. Robert Brown, both receiving attractive gift shop novelties, which they presented to the honoree.

The honor guest was surprised with a miscelleanous shower which consisted of linens, china, pictures, vases and other attractive household articles.

The hostess was ably assisted by her mother, Mrs. Will Ford, Mrs. G. McDermott and Mrs. Carl Black in serving a lovely salad course with an iced drink.

CANTATA TO BE REPEATED

The beautiful cantata given at the close of the Community Vacation School by the juniors of the school under the direction of Mesdames Hurdle, Sapp and Olsen was so splendid that repeated requests have been made that it be given again. Complying with this request the ladies have decided to repeat it on next Sunday evening at the Methodist church beginning promptly at 7:15 p. m., thus giving the people an opportunity to go to the service at the Baptist church which begins at 8 p. m. Let mothers and children who read this take notice that a rehearsal is to be given Friday at 8 p. m. Let our people attend this service of song put on by the children of the community.

NOTICE TO CAR DRIVERS!

This will give notice that no more excuses are to be accepted for failure to observe the stop sings in Cameron.

When these stop signs were installed it was the policy of the traffic officers to permit people to become familiar with driving conditions in the stop sign area.

Enforcement of the traffic regulations is necessary and from this notice car drivers will be informed that all violations will be reported and fines imposed.

Co-operation is asked for because the city does not desire to impose fines but this will be necessary if the traffic regluations are not observed. The stop signs are installed and maintained for the safety of the citizens and the orderly dispatch of traffic and violations cannot be permitted further.

Cutting corners will be prohibited also. There has been frequent violations of these regulations and complaint has been made so that it becomes necessary to enforce the regulations.

Your co-operation is sought. Let's make Cameron safe for auto traffic.

Respectfully,

Dan Lunsford
Traffic Officer.

A BOY SCOUT ON THE JOB

The following story is told by Richard S. Bonds, which illustrates well the practical side of the work of the Boy Scout Movement. Because we believe many are unacquainted with this important phase of Boy Scout work in the community, we publish the story.

The accident was a serious one. Two upturned cars and half a dozen injured persons by the roadside indicated this at the first glance.

Motorists from both directions stopped and did their best to render first aid and get the most seriously injured started for the nearest hospital—which was far away.

That enemy to motorists, shattered glass, had rendered its usual havoc, particularly with one of the drivers from whose arm a spirting flow announced extreme danger.

None seemed to know xactly what to do until a mere youth picked his way through the crowd, wrapped his handkerchief around the patient's arm, slipped a jack knife beneath it, and then with a screw driver, which he picked up from the ground, gave the tournquet a few expert twists.

It did the trick.

'Loosen this for a few seconds every ten minutes,' he said, 'and then tighten it up again. You will have trouble if you don't.

The man was rushed to the hospital, and the boy started back along the line of automobiles. Someone who had watched the boy stopped him and asked him where he had learned to stop arterial bleeding.

'It's one of the first things a Boy Scout has to learn,' he said with a smile, 'but I guess I will just call it my good turn for today. You know we pledge ourselves to do at least one good turn daily and I was just telling Dad that I was behind time for today.'

And that's all the boy had to say about saving a life. He probably did not even realize that he had taught a score of adults the real meaning of being prepared.

A BAD SITUATION

We are told that many of the large city banks are filled with money which they can not loan for the reason that the people who need and could use the money, do not have the type of scurities necessary to secure the money. On the other hand small town banks that are the farmers' banks are going broke or are struggling along with insufficient funds to carry on. We note that large banks in the east are loaning call money at one per cent and one-half per cent.

While this is going on the farmer is suffering for want of capital on which to operate and farm mortgages are being foreclosed and livestock and grain dumped on an already glutted market.

The situation is not healthy for the agricultural industry and the agricultural industry is the mainstay of this nation. When agriculture suffers, the entire nation suffers.

DRIFT TOWARD THE COUNTRY

The present depression with its attendant hardship on the small business man as well as the man on a salary is going to bring about some changes in the mode of living of many people. Chief among these is a drift back to the land. This drift will not be in the nature of a back to the farm movement which receives attention of writers and economics from time to time. The tendency is already in evidence for men in business and on a salary to own small tracts of land along the highways and produce a share of the living on the land. It is possible nowadays to secure desirable small tracts within easy driving distance of one's work. On these a good garden can be produced, chickens and a cow kept and in this way much of the family living produced on the place. The exercise afforded in connection with the upkeep of a project of this kind, proves beneficial in most instances to the owner. Many are coming to realize that the city life that permits one to shuttle back and forth between the office and the tiny apartment has not much future or freedom to it, hence the turning toward the country.

The situation is a wholesale one. Life under these conditions is more healthful and desirable than in the crowded city.

On these tracts it is possible to have practically all of the modern conveniences that the home in the city affords. The ready access to the entertainmnt and social life of the city removes from such a rural home the feature of isolation that marked rural life a few years ago.

With such a resource under his feet the average worker does not need to live in constant fear that when the pay check stops the landlord will be appearing with an ejection notice in a few days for non payment of rent.

We all pass the buck, it is a human nature trait. When you throw one that misses the plate an inch or two, you turn to the crowd in the stands with a slight wink—and maybe cover both eyes, to indicate that the ump is as blind as a bat. The crowd yells with apparent delight at these antics, but the crowd is wise to your style of pitching. Every individual in the stands and bleachers knows in his heart that your throw went wild—knows you are passing out a bunch of horse feathers to submerge a bum toss. They laugh wit h you, but they have your number and the next one had better be over the pan or they will erve you a dish of fan picked raspberries in a most enthusiastic manner.

If there is any consolation in it to you, the other fellow is having the same difficulty to get by that you are. He is having the same strenuous fight to keep the rent paid, meet his notes, buy a new car, put the children through school, pay his life insurance premiums and meet all the thousand and one demands that come to him the same as yours come to you. He may, as they say put on a better front and seem to be getting by easier, but in the majority of instances it is merely because he is a better actor and is able to conceal his effort.

Most fortunes and in fact nearly all of the comfortable incomes of those in any community who have provided enough for old age have been built a nickel and dime at a time. People as a rule do not keep themselves poor through occasional large expenditures, that like the drip at the spigot, drain but rather through expensive habits, their surplus away from them gradually. The person who has learned to refrain from buying things he does not need merely because they are cheap or happen to strike a passing fancy has laid the foundation stone of success and thrift.

Someone has truly said that the best way to judge a man is not by what other men say of him, but by what he says of other men. How true. A few minutes conversation with a man about other men will give a more accurate line up on him than an hour's inquiry about him from other men. One will find out if he is generous or selfish, honest or unscrupulous, narrow minded or broad minded, mean or charitable. In fact one can find out all he needs to know about a man by listening him talk about other men.

In the animal kingdom when a couple of wolves engage in a fight, the pack stands around waiting to see which one will fall. As soon as death occurs to one of the combatants the circle closes in and tears him to pieces. The business world is a lot like that. As long as a man is riding on the top of the wave, everyone is after his business and is willing to trust him, but let misfortune overtake him and he lose his money and the crowd closes in on him.

Ed Howe the veteran Kansas newspaper man has looked out upon life through the eyes of a newspaper reporter for more than forty years. The following observation by him is of interest for the reason that it is the opinion of a trained observer of life. Mr. Howe says: The young should be taught the danger of getting a start in idleness. If a young man is idle up to the age of twenty, his case is usually hopeless. Industry should be taught the young like manners, arithmetic, grammar, history, music.

This country is the richest nation in the world. The difficulty is that the bulk of the wealth of the country is in the hands of a few people. When the bulk of the money gets into the hands of a few, business is poor because the wants of these few are limited. When the bulk of the money gets into the hands of the many, business is good beause their wants are many.

I haven't got to make the universe; I've got to do my own small job and to look up often at the trees and hills and the sky and be friendly with all men.—David Grayson.

We should manage our thoughts as shepherds do their flowers in making garlands; first select the choicest and dispose of them in the most proper places, that everyone may reflect a part of its brightness on the next.—S. T. Coleridge.

Silence is the best resolve for him who distrusts himself.—LaRochefoucauld.

An honest man is one of the few great works that can be seen for nothing.—Dickens.

While it is commonly called a 'whisk' broom, 'whisp' is also correct.

Soon after the breeding season each year, the male deer loses its entire rack of antlers.

Air travel is safer than generally supposed. Last year in this country there was only one fatal accident for each 2,800,000 miles flown.

Slavery is still in existence, in Liberia. Harvey Firestone, tire manufacturer, who operates a rubber plantation in Liberia has asked the government to abolish slavery that he may go into the open market and employ labor without having to buy slaves from the officials.

NEXT time you are out of fix as the result of irregular or faulty bowel movement, try Thedford's Black-Draught for the refreshing relief it gives thousands of people who take it. Mr. E. W. Cecil, a construction superintendent in Pulaski, Va., says:

"When I get constipated, my head aches, and I have that dull, tired feeling—just not equal to my work. I don't feel hungry and I know that I need something to cleanse my system, so I take Black-Draught. We have found it a great help."

Great Writers of Past Had Fondness for Cats

Byron was fond of cats; in his establishment at Ravenna he had five of them, writes Helen M. Winslow in "Concerning Cats." Daniel Maclise's famous portrait of Harriot Martineau represents that estimable woman sitting in front of a fireplace and turning her face to receive the caress of her pet cat crawling to a resting place upon her mistress' shoulder.

Baudelaire, it is said, never could pass a cat in the street without stopping to stroke and fondle it. "Many a time," said Champfleury, "when he and I have been walking together, have we stopped to look at a cat curled up luxuriously in a pile of fresh white linen, reveling in the cleanliness of the newly ironed fabrics."

Professor Huxley's notorious fondness for cats was a fad which he shared with Paul de Koch, the novelist, who, at one time, kept as many as 30 cats in the house. Many descriptions of them are to be found scattered through his novels. His chief favorite, Fromentin, lived 11 years with him.

Pierre Loti has written a charming and most touching history of two of his cats—Moumette Blanche and Moumette Chinoise—which all true cat lovers should make a point of reading.

Science Offers Weapon for Survival of Man

Science will help man to survive beyond the fate of many extinct species that have been conquered by their environment. The most powerful method yet devised, says Dr. Roscoe R. Spencer writing in Hygeia Magazine, is in the weapon of science.

Man is confronted with the problem of adapting himself successfully to his environment before the environment overpowers him, says Doctor Spencer. Research alone will enable man to discover the laws of nature so that he may adapt himself, and in science lies the heart and soul of research.

While the average person has only the vaguest ideas concerning the workings of scientific men, science is not at all to be left to the highly gifted few, Doctor Spencer continues. The average person is capable of accomplishing much by the scientific method of trial and error in research. Doctor Spencer invites his readers to bring the scientific methods into their everyday life and to benefit by its use.

Cold Cream Long Popular

Don't let this jar your cold cream, girls. But, "believe it or not," that indispensable cosmetic of present-day femininity has been keeping the wrinkles from milady's face for more than 2,000 years. So says Charles Whitebread, curator of the division of medicine at the National museum in Washington. What is more, he says it is the second oldest of all pharmaceutical preparations. And do you girls know who "invented" your old standby? To quote Curator Whitebread "the fragrant unguent has changed very little from the original formula for unguentum refrigerans ceratum, invented and prescribed by the Roman physician Galen, sometimes known as the 'father of pharmacy.'"—Pathfinder Magazine.

"Pieces of Eight"

This coin is a Spanish piece that circulated freely in this country in Colonial and Revolutionary times and the coin to which we owe the adoption of the dollar as the unit of our currency. It had become the custom in many places, especially in the South, to price goods, keep accounts and make collections in "Spanish milled dollars," the name under which the old "pieces of eight"—eight reals—were known in the Colonies. When we came to have a currency of our own we took the piece of eight, or Spanish dollar, as our unit and divided it into a hundred cents.

The End Alone Counts

John Bright once declared of his party, "We shall win in the long run." And they did. It is the win in the long run that is life's best win.

The runner, who wins the first lap is a good runner, but he who stays on and keeps at his running and wins the last is the best runner. The boxer who wins the fight is he who wins in the long run.

A chapter in a life may be tragic, but if the end is happy, what does it matter? It is the end that counts.—London Chronicle.

Cure for Convulsions

The following was taken from a recent report by a nurse in one of the cities of New York state:

"While taking a history of a prenatal mother I asked the mother what was the cause of a previous child's death; she replied that it died of convulsions. I then inquired if she knew what to do for convulsions. She answered immediately, saying 'stand with the baby in your left arm with back to the stove, remove baby's shirt and throw it over your shoulder into the fire.'"—Health News.

Too Big to Ask

Robert insisted that his younger brother be sent on an errand to a neighbor's.

"Why don't you want to go?" inquired his mother.

"I went to the grocery for her. She said she was going to make cookies today and Junior will get 'em, if he goes. I'm too big to ask."

Remove that Monkey Wrench

The depression bugbear is just a monkey wrench in the economic machinery. Until we remove it by buying normally and thinking normally, unemployment, closed factories and red-inked ledgers are the inevitable result. Thus, in holding back our dollars we emphasize the very situation we dread so greatly. : : Pride in the community, common sense, patriotism, all urge us to buy normally. : : : It's not a form of martyrdom : : : just a simple appeal to come out of the cyclone cellar, now that the storm is over.

This Is Buying Time!

Many Seals on the California Coast

The largest number of channel seals and sea lions to be seen in many years have appeared in the surf from Long Beach to Santa Monica, Calif. Fishermen said the reason for the heavy influx of seals was the early and exceptionally heavy migration of game fish from Mexican waters northward. The game fish drive the smaller fry, particularly anchovies and sardines, in toward the shore line, and the seals, who live upon the smaller fish, follow them to shallow water. The photograph shows a number of seals basking in the noon-day sun after a heavy meal.

SUNNY SIDE

The Hollywood Girl team will be seen in action Sunday, June 27 and the largest crowd of the season is expected to witness the girls perform. It was understood when the game was matched that the team would be made up altogether of girls. Positively no passes issued for this game.

The other future games that have been booked so far will bring Rogers here on Friday, July 3 for a game and on the next day the same teams will go together again at the Lawless Green field. On the following day, Sunday, July 5 the Hilltop Bakery team of Waco will be here for a double header.

In the first game last Sunday with the Packers the Firemen played the game they should have been playing in very game. They got seventeen hits, one home run, one three bagger and three doubles being interspersed in the hit column. They batted for a .447 average, but in the second game fell to a .290 average. While Ricketts allowed nine hits in the second game he kept them well scattered. But in this second game Heinie Walker made two home runs. In the first game Sumrall got a home run, a three bagger and a single in four times up.

McDonald got but two hits in nine attempts. Vogelsang got three hits in eight tries. Thompson relieved Vogelsang in the sixth inning of the last game and got a hit in his one attempt. Jenness and Keith improved their standing in the hitting averages.

The Batting and Fielding averages will be found in another column of The Herald this week.

In view of the fact that Monroe, Louisiana seems to have blown up as a member of the Cotton States League the Firemen are trying to get Harry White for the Firemen team. He was telegraphed to but no reply was received asking him when he would return to his home. Possibly Ft. Worth has sent him to some other league for further seasoning and again he might have been told to report to Fort Worth.

This, (Tuesday) night the Temple Telegram League managers will have a meeting at Temple to make up the schedule for the second half of the Telegram race and attend to such other matters as may come before them.

Self-Revelation

Perhaps the most withering and wittiest rejoinder ever made on a political platform, thinks Sir Ian Malcolm, writing in his reminiscences, "Trodden Ways," was that made by Joseph H. Choate during an election campaign in New York. Following a speech by "Boss" Croker—who rarely spoke in public—in which he had "completely given away his case," in the judgment of his opponents, Mr. Choate gravely said:

"Now, consider the case of Balaam's ass; before it spoke all men regarded it as quite an ordinary quadruped; but after it had spoken they discovered what an extraordinary ass it was."—Kansas City Star..

British Flag a Mixture

The Union Jack of Great Britain is composed of three crosses, representing England, Scotland and Ireland. The cross of St. George for England is a broad, upright Latin cross, red on a white ground; the cross of St. Andrew for Scotland is a saltire or X-shaped, white on a blue ground; the cross of St. Patrick for Ireland is a red saltire on a white ground. When the union of the two crowns of England and Scotland took place upon the occasion of James VI of Scotland to the English throne as James I, the flags of England and Scotland were united. The union flag as it is now flown did not appear until 1801.

BUSINESS WOMEN GET REPORT ON STATE MEET

DELEGATES RETURN FROM ANNUAL STATE MEETING IN AMARILLO

Interesting accounts of the trip to Amarillo and the proceedings of the state meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club were given by the delegates, Mrs. Katherine Robbins and Miss Rose Rischar, president, who attended the meeting the 28, 29 and 30 of May. They exhibited a number of attractive souvenirs along with the account at their meeting on Thursday night.

In the report from the state meeting it was found that the Cameron Club rated second in the state efficiency contest. Tyler came first with a very small margin.

Mrs. Robbins gave an interesting talk on the many resources of Milam county and Texas, and the club voted to use Texas products, and also voted to be boosters of Milam County and Texas, and to abstain from crying hard times and help mould the public to a better thinking of times. The club also voted to accept the invitation given them by the American Legion to help serve coffee on the 4th of July.

Mrs. H. C. Keith, treasurer, gave a splendid report on the condition of the club, voted to accept the report and turn it over to the new incoming treasurer, Miss Bernice McLerran.

The past year has been a very fine year for the club and much is due to the outgoing president, Miss Rischar, who has endeared herself to the club members and has helped very largely in the work of the club along the archaeological interest that has been taken.

The new officers were installed and the outgoing president, Miss Rischar, was presented with a handsome corsage. Mrs. L. Bigbee, the new president took charge of the meeting. This was followed with the serving of delicious ice cream and cake.

Mrs. R. R. Dabney left Tuesday morning for Hamlin where she was called on account of the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Will Ray.

The strenuous life caused by the depression and competition almost causes one to wish for the old days when one wanted some beef he went out and shot a buffalo. No one hoarded food or money and there was plenty for all. The present plan of life with its competition develops the ingenuity and inventive genius of man, but who can say whether this is better and that there is more happiness than under the old system.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK HANEL MAKE LIVING ROOM; WRITE STORY OF HOW IMPROVEMENTS WERE MADE

Mrs. Adolph Hanel of the Hoyte Home Demonstration Club won first place in the County Living Room Contest and Mrs. Bill Clark won second place, according to the judges Mesdames Pollard and Dow Eplen of Cameron. Mrs. Hanel spent $35.45 and improved her living room by more than eleven times while Mrs. Bill Clark spent $5.96 and increased her score by four and one-half times. Both women are to be highly complimented on the splendid demonstration which they have conducted.

Mrs. Hanel's story of the improvement of her room follows:

'A few years ago, 1925, I joined the Home Demonstration Club. I thought that was a good idea for the farmer to have. I was interested in everything. Of course I heard about the Living Room Contest and how some women had made a new room out of an old one. I thought, 'How I wish I could have one.' While I was thinking this I wondered what is the use to have a pretty room far from the highway and can't hear a car nor a train, just an airplane once in a long while.

Last fall Miss Bartholomew asked the Club who would like to enter the Living Room Contest. I wanted too, so I asked some questions and later decided to join. In January the judges came out. After they left I said, 'That means for me to get busy.' What did I have to get busy with, two rocking chairs, that needed doing over, a home made library table, an old wash stand, and a wood heater, with a floor full of crocks and rough boards, a dark green ceiling, that made the room oppressive as well as dark, the walls were in such condition that the paper went back and forth when the norther blew and we had to pile on wood to keep warm. There were two small windows with the screen tacked on, no baseboards for the walls or facings for the windows.

In just a few days we had a demonstration on making rugs. I was thinking of all kinds of colors. I selected the green, tan and brown and another of black, blue and old rose. As I was working I wondered how long it was going to take to make one and the more I worked the better I liked it. I like the color. Thy are just made from gunny sacks.

Now I began on the ceiling, washing it and my husband gave it three coats of light cream paint. Another window was added making a double, which all the neighbors enjoy. From this window we see the fields and near-by woods—a beautiful view. The window and door facings had to be boxed in. The door was in a bad shape. This was the first carpetering my husband had ever done, so he had a hard time repairing. The floors were scraped and re-scraped and much putty used in filling the cracks but finally we decided it was ready for the light buff paint. The wood work which was a dark, dirty brown was all cleaned and painted a light cream.

I spent much time trying to find a piece of wall paper suitable for my walls, finally deciding on a very light piece with a tiny design, this would make my room look larger and give more light. The cracks had to be stuffed with gunny sacks, then I tacked sacks stretched tight over the walls, then cheese cloth over this. My husband renailed all the boards and fixed the walls so that it would not rain in any more. After putting up my paper I saw that I needed a base board. It would cost a couple of dollars to get the material, so we looked around and found some material that had come out of the wall. My husband said we could not use it because it was so rough. I told him I would fix it. I would smooth it. I did, too, now it looks like new. New frames were made for the screens and hung.

I was now ready to give my seven pieces of furniture a lye bath. From the wash stand my husband made a desk. One rocker was re-upholstered with striped denim and a foot stool made to match. All furniture was done in the walnut varnish and waxed. One book shelf was made and hung over the table, a couch was made from an old folding bed that had been thrown away for years. I had to make over the springs, make a mattress, and a cover. A piece of heavy material striped in the colors I have in my rugs was used for the spread. The couch gives us the needed seating space, and also answers for an extra bed when company comes. One table was made for the Victrola and a screen to hide the view from my kitchen door. Glazed chintz was used for the screen. I have used slub-osnaburg for my draperies hung on green poles. I like them very much. I had been wondering in the meantime what I was to do for a picture or two. After everything was all done but the arranging I remembered I had stored away a few. Among this I found a pastoral scene and another of flowers, with them two very attractive old wooden frames.

We have changed our furniture around several times in order to have each center in the most appropriate place. In our family we have two little girls, one five years and the other a baby. My little girl has her chair and her play things where she can enjoy them while I am sewing or resting. My husband likes his desk. We are very proud of a room to live in, our neighbors like it too. We have worked awfully hard smothing these boards, cleaning and refinishing, but we are glad it is finished, and we are going to enjoy it now.

My living room cost me $35.45, my largest expense being my paint.

DAMAGE SUITS HEARD IN DISTRICT COURT

RAY CATCHINGS CONVICTED OF LIQUOR CHARGE AND GIVEN ONE YEAR

Ray Catchings was convicted Monday and given a year in the penitentiary for unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale. The offense was alleged to have occurred within three blocks of the Rockdale post office, on or about April 19. Catchings gave notice of appeal when the Court refused his motion for new trial, and entered into a recognizance in the sum of $1500. His case will likely not be reached prior to November, as the Court of Criminal Appeals will adjourn the last of June for its summer vacation, and not re-convene before probably October.

Tuesday, the case of The Union Central Life Insurance Company vs. M. V. Tyson et al, debt and foreclosure of a deed of trust lien, was tried, and judgment rendered for plaintiff for amount sued for, about $7000, and foreclosure of lien and order of sale by the Sheriff. M. V. Tyson had sold the land, and it was owned by C. W. Tyson, but C. W. Tyson did not assume the debt, bought subject to it. There was a contest based upon the claim that the District Court did not have jurisdiction because administration is pending upon the C. W. Tyson estate in probate court, and if the District Court did render judgment, the judgment should be certified to the probate court. The trial court did not sustain these contentions.

The plea of privilege of defendant to be sued in Robertson county, his place of residence, was acted upon by the court, Wednesday, in the case of Rudolph Schultz vs. Walter C. Wiese. Schultz claims to have sustained damages by reason of collision between his car and a truck driven by an employee of Wiese, in Milam County, and alleges the truck driver was at fault and negligent. Plea was overruled and defendant gave notice of appeal to the Court of Civil Appeals.

Mrs. Serene Peters et al vs. S. Kestenbaum et al and D. D. Dove vs. S. Kestenbaum et al., suits for damages for alleged negligence of defendants' employee leaving a truck parked at night beside the public road near Chilton, without guard or lights, causing husband of Mrs. Peters, while en route from Waco to Lott to collide with the truck and fatally wounding him. Dove is administrator of the Peters estate and sues for the loss sustained in the destruction of the car, and for medical and hospital bills, etc. The cases were transfered here from Falls County District Court.

"Indiscreet" Starring Gloria Swanson At The Milam Sunday

Gloria Swanson, who comes to the Milam Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday in her latest United Artists picture enitled 'Indiscreet,' embarked upon a screen career because of herself, rather than a definite urge to find an outlet for histrionic talent.

Believers in destiny will find an excellent subject in Miss Swanson, because the popular star had no ambitions at all to follow the stage, much less the screen; but she was literally shoved into stardom because others recognized in her everything that is demanded of a star personality.

Miss Swanson's father was an army transport officer and the star received her early education at widely separated points owing to her father being transferred from one army post to another. While stationed at Key West, Florida, he saw his daughter make her theatrical debut in a school playlet, and afterwards at San Juan, Porto Rico, she was given the lead role in another school affair. Finally she visited an aunt in Chicago and 'just for fun,' did extra work at the old Essanay studio. She left shortly for California where she intended training for the concert stage, when Mack Sennett spotted her, and insisted that she give up her musical career for the screen.

The rest is well known to screen fans. Miss Swanson will always be known as one of the greatest motion picture stars to grace the screen, and her latest work in 'Indiscreet' is an appealing characterization providing numerous dramatic situations, without being too heavy, and sufficient comedy relief without being trivial. She appears as 'Jerry Trent' who has very definite ideas about the proper way to dominate men, and does not hesitate to put them into practice.

Miss Swanson has an excellent supporting cast with Ben Lyon opposite her.

The star portrays a modern girl who, while engaged to a popular novelist, risks the destruction of her own happiness to prevent a former admirer from winning the affections of her younger sister.

Ben Lyon, generally regarded as one o fthe most debonair leading men i npictures, is cast in the leading male role as the novelist. 'Tony Blake,' a dashing, buoyant sort of fellow who puts zest into life principally by obeying his impulses.

Monroe Owsley, who gave such an excellent account of himself in H'oliday,' in the same role which he created on the Broadway stage, plays the former lover, 'Jim Woodward,' giving the character just the touch of suavity it requires.

Barbara Kent, one of the most promising of the younger featured players and a graduate of the school of Comedy, which has started so many up the ladder of cinematic prominence appears as the younger sister, 'Joan Trent.'

Arthur Lake, admittedly the screen's outstanding exponent of 'puppy love,' has the role of 'Buster Collins,' 'Joan's' sweetheart of school days—and it is the part much to his liking.

Picture goers who see Gloria Swanson's latest United Artists picture will be agreeably impressed with the forward stride recently made in sound recosding. A new device was used in seconding Miss Swanson's pictuse and fans will have a pleasant surprise when they hear the new tone reproduction which is said to be so close to life as to be startling.

Great Patriotic Society Formed in Revolution

The Society of the Cincinnati is an hereditary patriotic society organized in 1783 by the American and foreign officers of the Continental army assembled in their cantonment on the Hudson river near Fishkill, N. Y. The original meeting was held in the Verplanck house, then the headquarters of Baron Steuben. The objects of the society were: "To perpetuate as well the remembrance of the Revolution as the mutual friendships which have been formed under the pressure of common danger. . . ." Since most of the officers were returning to their farms, which they had left to fight for the republic, they named their organization the Society of the Cincinnati, after their Roman prototype, Lucius Quintus Cincinnatus. George Washington was the first president general. He was elected in 1787 and re-elected until his death. Presidents general succeeding him have been Alexander Hamilton, C. Cotesworth Pinckney, Thomas Pinckney, Aaron Ogden, Morgan Lewis, William Popham, H. A. S. Dearborn, Hamilton Fish, William Wayne and Winslow Warren. The state societies meet annually and the general society meets once in every three years. The living hereditary members number 980. The emblem symbolizes the union of France and America.

Unlike Many Prophets, These Two Were Right

The centenary of the death of Henry Bell, that erratic genius responsible for the introduction of steam navigation on the Clyde, has passed. On the trial trip of the Comet, Bell is reported to have declared: "Wherever there is a river . . . throughout the world there will speedily be a steamboat." Similarly Robert Stephenson, who foresaw the development of that other means of transport—the railway—and whose name is ever associated with the Liverpool and Manchester railway, which was opened more than one hundred years ago, while sitting in a Stockton inn, told his son and John Dixon: "I venture to tell you I think you will live to see the day when railways will supersede almost all other methods of conveyance in this country. What I have said will come to pass, as sure as you live." Both of these prophets lived to see the fulfilment of their prophecies.

Legends of Empedocles

Empedocles lived in royal style, surrounded by all the pomp and pageantry great wealth could procure. He was exceedingly kind to the poor and gave large sums to succor them. He also provided dowries for scores of poor young virgins to enable them to secure husbands.

Empedocles studied medicine and became a really great physician for the time. He was brought to a woman who had lain for seven days as if dead. "She can, and will, remain in that state, without eating or breathing, for thirty days," declared Empedocles. He was right. She did. At the end of that time he restored her to full life and vigor.—Exchange.

Old Anglo-Saxon Word

Minster, meaning a Christian religious house, is from an Anglo-Saxon word, mynster, meaning the same thing. In the nomenclature of the English church, it means an abbey, or the monastic building of a religious society. In the term Westminster abbey, the word abbey is superfluous, for minster means the same thing, and is so used in York minster, meaning the abbey church at York. It is generally agreed that Westminster was so called because it was west of St. Paul's. The present abbey is the abbey of St. Peter, but is called Westminster because built on the site of the old Westminster.

Change With Weather

Some hygroscopes are not mechanical; they owe their hygroscopic properties to their color, which changes with the state of humidity of the air by reason of the application of sympathetic inks. These instruments are often composed of a flower or a figure, of light muslin or paper, immersed in the following solution: Cobalt chloride, 1 part; gelatin, 10 parts; water, 100 parts. The normal coloring is pink. This color changes into violet in medium humid weather and into blue in very dry weather.—Washington Star.

Chinese God of Destiny

The image of the famous Chinese God of Destiny before which the young are taught to pray is rather a terrifying object with its great glaring eyes, and open mouth full of sharpened teeth. He is regarded as a friend, however. The young are taught to kneel and pray for light for their future guidance. The abode of this idol is the famous 501 temple in Pekin, so-called because of that number of images housed therein and where the Chinese repair for worship.

Compromise

The mother of a four-year-old youngster had been obliged to resort to disciplinary measures to suppress the cavortings of her offspring. When bedtime arrived, the sensibilities of the child continued to show signs of injury.

"Kiss mother, honey," suggested the mother as she tucked the covers about her daughter.

"All right, mamma, I still love you. But I don't like you," firmly announced the little one.

Knights of Columbus Win 2 Games Here Sunday, June 21st

The Knights got out their battle axe, sharpened and used it to win a double header. Hoyte was the first victim. Schigut was the starting pitcher and after a good lead given him by his team mates was relieved by Schattle who did nicely however allowing three runs but held them in the pinches and the Knights won 5 to 3.

In the second game against Rockdale, Schigut pitched again and won 7 to 5. Louis Matula of Knights took the hidden ball trick polished it well and then used it on second base to retire the side. Balhorn was missed in the lineup on account of a sore hand and managed from the bench, but in the sixth inning of the second game had to go in and catch as Lud Matula was very painfully hurt in a collision on a close play at home plate.

June Brides

1898 — 1931

CAN YOU lucky brides of 1931 imagine what your kitchen would have looked like if you had married in 1898, when most people didn't have the advantages of natural gas service? Let's try.

First, the unattractive bulk over against the wall is your wood stove. Since you have been married only two weeks, friend husband is home early to help. Having brought in an armload of wood, he is now industriously trying to start a fire while fanning the smoke away with his new derby. In about thirty minutes your stove should be hot enough to boil water, which is conveniently near in a big bucket with a handy dipper. Ice? Why my dear, ice was a luxury in those days.

But enough of inconveniences--back to 1931 with its myriad conveniences for housewives both old and young. Your glistening gas range gives you instant heat at the turn of a handle. Most of the evening meal has already been cooked in the automatically controlled oven. The oven's insulated walls have kept all the heat inside, leaving the kitchen cool and comfortable. Plenty of steaming hot water is constantly on tap. The automatic gas refrigerator has kept everything fresh and crisp and made plenty of ice without a single sound. The scraps from the evening meal are disposed of by your odorless, gas-fired incinerator.

Is it any wonder that the modern bride keeps young--pretty--sweet-tempered--happy--many years longer than the bride in the days before gas comforts?
